

Kiesler

Clark, in the other paper we read, explains Least Collective Effort but also shows when this is not true and for what reasons. Based on what you've read there and here in Kiesler, what is your view of the practicality of Least Collective Effort in HRI—is it practical and is it the right goal? If not, can you invent an alternative “goal” within the purview of Common Ground theory? Either way, defend your answer!