A digital camera connected to our vision algorithms makes a formidable tool, useful for peace or warfare.

Maybe you consider this obvious. But if your research is funded by the military, how do you think it will be used first: peace or war?

The pretense of neutrality no longer works: modern robots now carry guns. Soon will come the logical conclusion: vision algorithms applied to autonomous targeting. And soon after begins our new body count.